

For Immediate Release

Waterloo Region tech heads to London, Ontario to recruit top talent

Waterloo Region, June 11, 2009 ... Canada's most successful tech community needs more skilled talent, so it's heading to London, Ontario to entice techies to move to Waterloo Region.

"While much of the economy is in turmoil, the tight tech talent market hasn't changed. We still want the very best and brightest", says Iain Klugman, president and CEO of Communittech. "Talent continues to be a key factor to growth and competitiveness for tech firms in Waterloo Region."

On Wednesday, June 17 from 5:00 p.m.-7:30 p.m., Communittech and several Waterloo Region tech companies will be at the London Hilton to talk about career opportunities with potential candidates.

Participating tech firms include Open Text, Desire2Learn, Agfa HealthCare, DALSA, Christie Digital Systems Canada, Tech Capital Partners, PostRank/AideRSS, Avvasi, Coreworx, Covarity, LiveHive, Metranome, and more.

Waterloo Region offers a great variety of work to those with top skills in demand - software developers, quality assurance specialists and sales professionals - everything from large tech corporations to medium-sized to start-up ventures, with careers at more than 500 tech enterprises.

Visit www.waterlootechjobs.com to register.

.30.

Media Enquiries: Karen Gallant, Director, Talent Networks, 519-590-9637 (mobile) or Karen@communittech.ca

Communittech is the regional hub for the commercialization of innovation, creating economic prosperity by removing barriers to the creation and growth of technology companies. Its goal is to create more successful global businesses for Canada.